

WAVES OF CHANGE

BURKE MUSEUM
ANNUAL REPORT

2020–2021

DEAR FRIENDS,

I've never been afraid to make a few waves.

Early on, as a female archaeologist finding my way at a time when the profession was largely dominated by men, and more recently, as the Executive Director of the Burke Museum, I've had to push past what was expected to get to what was important.

Along the way, I've been lucky to find fellow wave-makers like you—supporters, donors, friends—who have shown the courage and determination to question the status quo and dive into the project of remaking a legacy institution facing a need for drastic change. Together we've built a Burke Museum that is strong and confident and not afraid to evolve.

Of course, we have literally built a new Burke, whose dramatic physical presence is a testament to growth. The Inside-Out model represents a marked departure from past practice, as we show visitors who we are and how we work, inviting them to engage more deeply, and more meaningfully. Our decolonization efforts continue this process, as we seek to name and heal the harm done by traditional approaches to collections and their curation. And last year, when COVID-19 put our openness to the test, every part of our community rose to the occasion, keeping the Burke not simply afloat, but ensuring that it is welcoming, accessible, and safe—in person and virtually.

More change awaits. The museum will welcome a new Executive Director this spring when I retire, one who will navigate new challenges, and have the pleasure of collaborating with our staff, donors, volunteers, and visitors to realize the potential of the Burke. We are already creating new research, educational models, and public programs that will advance our mission in unexpected, important, and wonderful ways. Thank you for all you've done to make this possible.

Come on in, friends, the water's fine.

Julie K. Stein
Executive Director

WELCOME

FROM REX AND ELISE

Together, we embraced change and opportunity in the continued work of the museum, and through the importance of community collaboration. As we all prepare to welcome a new Executive Director in the spring, we will carry forward the partnership to realize the potential of the Burke. Thank you for joining us on this journey as we continue to listen, be more inclusive, and work hard to create good relationships.

Warm regards,

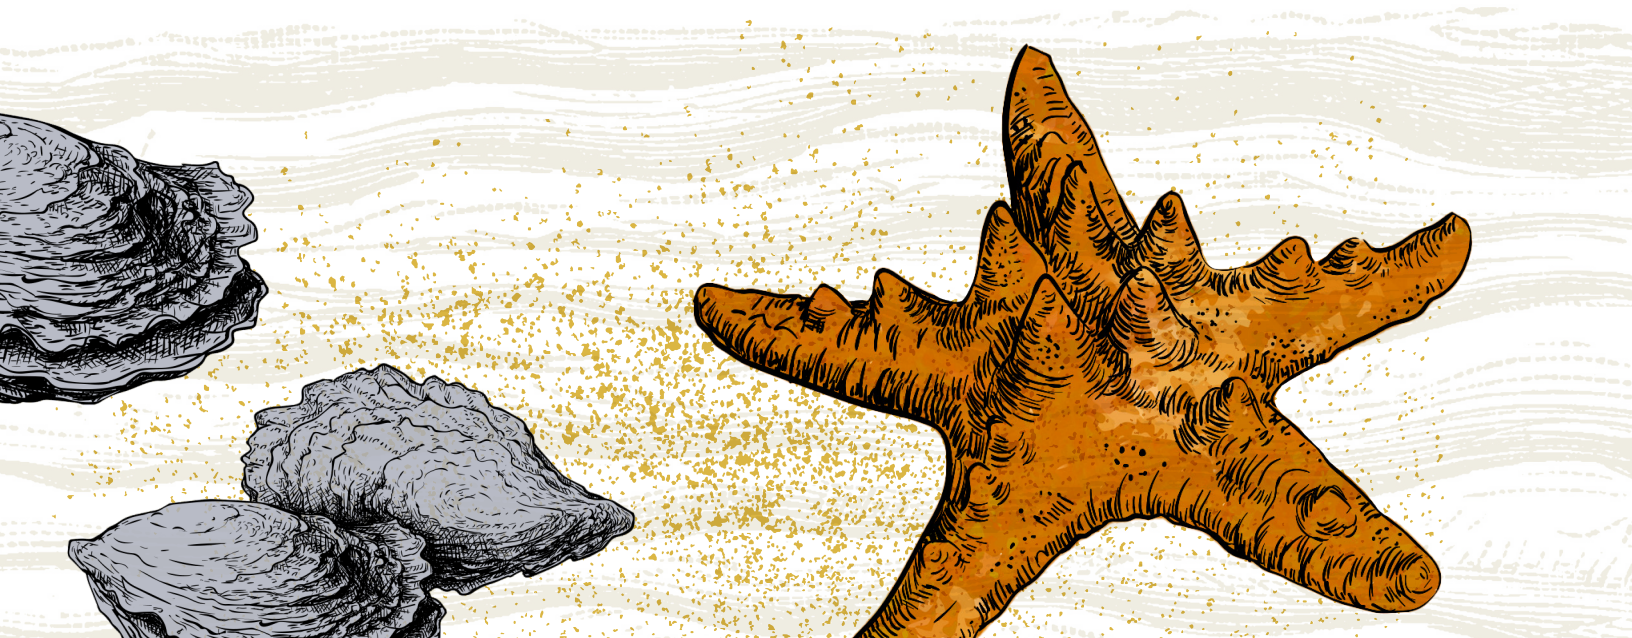

Rex Buck, Jr. (Wanapum)
*Native American Advisory Board
Executive Committee Chair*

Looking back at this year, it's safe to say that we are no strangers to change. Through it all, I am deeply awed and inspired by the groundswell of commitment to the Burke Museum from our dedicated supporters. And as we reflect on Julie's incredible legacy, and embrace the ever-present change that lies ahead, I am excited. I know the Burke's mission and vision will continue to thrive because of your support. Thank you!

In gratitude,

Elise Hebb
*Burke Museum Association
President*
